PSA Sines, also known as Sines Container Terminal, is a modern transshipment terminal that is able to handle the largest container vessels. Located 150 kilometres south of Lisbon, it is free of any urban congestion and has abundant land for expansion. Well connected by road and rail to the main hinterland, the terminal is positioned to be the preferred Atlantic gateway for Portugal and the Iberian Peninsula.

PSA Sines is also suitably located at the cross-roads of two main shipping routes – the North-South (30 nautical miles away) and the East-West route (70 nautical miles away), making it the ideal port of call where the two trade routes meet. ■
