DALIAN CONTAINER TERMINAL

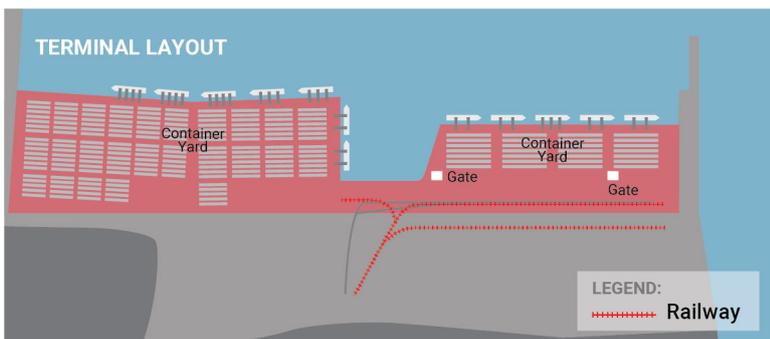

Dalian Container Terminal (DCT) is a natural deepwater port favourably located at the entrance of Bohai Rim, serving as the gateway to Northeast China and a hub port to the Bohai Rim.

DCT is well-connected to an extensive inland container transportation network that reaches the hinterland of Northeast China, including dedicated train services to major cities such as Changchun, Harbin, Shenyang, Yanji, and Manzhouli. On the maritime front, the Bohai Rim feeder service network enables efficient transshipment of cargo from Northeast China's key economic regions to the rest of the world through DCT.

The terminal offers 24-hour customised services, including cargo consolidation, de-consolidation, reefer management, as well as warehouse storage, packaging, and freight forwarding. ■
